

GENTLEMEN!

Now's the Time!

Now's the time, men, to get your new Fall Suit. Don't wait until the season is half over—get it now and have the pleasure of wearing it all through this brisk fall weather, when all your friends are "sprucing up."

Have you seen the beautiful blues, grays, browns and tans that we are showing this season in those smart new English formfitting models that the well-dressed young fellows are wearing now?

For fifteen, twenty and twenty-five dollars and higher we can show you swell things that you can't match elsewhere around town at any price.

$15 to $35

for the best and smartest Suits and Fall Overcoats that Schloss Bros. & Co. of Baltimore and New York, Stein Bloch Co. of New York and the famous L. System of Chicago, our famous makers ever turned out.

Exact duplicates of these sold by the high-priced Kansas City and St. Louis shops at 25 per cent more, precisely the same goods, models and patterns. See these fine Suits.

How About Your Fall Hat?

Time for a new one, don't you think? The old one is pretty well out of date now.

NEWS ITEM.

Killed Saving Hat.

His anxiety to save his hat, which was blown from his head while driving in an automobile, caused the death of William L. Feber, sales manager for the American Chemical Company, of New York. Mr. Feber, whose home was at 260 North Twenty-third Street, East Orange, N. J., was with Alonzo N. Messer, president of the East Orange police commission, Saturday afternoon in Mr. Messer's car when his hat was carried away by the wind. As Mr. Feber leaped from the machine his foot caught in the frame work, throwing him to the ground.

He died in an ambulance while being taken to All Souls' Hospital in Morristown.

We read in the paper how one man got killed trying to save his old hat.

Come in here and get a new one that will stay on, and look so well while it's on, that you'll be proud you've got a Hat.

All the new blocks here—derbys and felt, $1.00 to $4.00.
